ABSTRACT

Books, monographs, and journal articles dealing with New York State history are listed and described. The briefly annotated bibliography is organized into alphabetically arranged, topical categories, including the following: Adirondacks; agriculture and farm life; American Revolution; archaeology; architecture and historic preservation; Black studies; calendars, maps, and tour guides; census data; economics; education; ethnic studies; family history; literature; government; graphic arts; American Indians; labor studies; legal history; Long Island; military affairs; performing arts; recreation; religion; science and medicine; social history; transportation; upstate community history; urban studies; women's history; and young readers. Each category is divided into sections under the subheadings of "Published in 1980," "Additions to Research and Publications - 1979," and "In Progress during 1979." An extensive index concludes the listing. (RM)

PREFACE

THE STATE HISTORY BIBLIOGRAPHY

In 1952, State Historian Albert B. Corey became aware of the need for a comprehensive and timely listing of research and writing on the history of New York State. Under his direction, the Division of Archives and History sought to provide that service. From 1952 to 1968, a bibliography entitled "New York State and Local Research in Progress" was published in the July issue of NEW YORK HISTORY, the quarterly journal of the New York State Historical Association. The "Research in Progress" series was informal, usually consisting of a page or two of titles and projects that had been brought to the attention of the State Historian.

This approach was more appropriate during Corey's tenure because at that time, State history tended to focus on important events, places, and persons in New York's past. But since the 1960s, the historiographic trend has been away from studies of great men and general overviews and toward studies of life at the grass roots or local level. A growing interest in State, regional, and local history caused both professional and amateur historians to conduct research and publish in New York State history. As a result of the growth of New York studies, the State's bibliography project outgrew the home provided by NEW YORK HISTORY for "Research in Progress." In 1968, a separate publication was begun under the title of RESEARCH AND PUBLICATIONS IN NEW YORK STATE HISTORY. This series appeared annually until 1972 when the celebration of the Bicentennial attracted attention away from RESEARCH AND PUBLICATIONS, and the publication ceased. In 1976, the reorganization of the Office of State History into the Division of Historical Services provided an opportunity to revive the bibliography as Division administrators sought to offer a publications program that would serve the diverse elements of New York State's historical community. Requests to resume publication of RESEARCH AND PUBLICATIONS had been received from historians, teachers, librarians, and the public in general. Reestablishment of RESEARCH AND PUBLICATIONS IN NEW YORK STATE HISTORY enabled the Division of Historical Services to provide a basic service through publication of a State history bibliography.

The 1976 edition of RESEARCH AND PUBLICATIONS IN NEW YORK STATE HISTORY was based on the format of previous editions. In an effort to make RESEARCH AND PUBLICATIONS more comprehensive, the scope was expanded and information was solicited. Publishers, teachers, authors, editors, historians, and historical societies were contacted and were asked to contribute. Journals, newsletters, book catalogs, and other finding aids were searched by the compilers. The result was a 112-page bibliography which described works in detail and featured a comprehensive index.

RESEARCH AND PUBLICATIONS IN NEW YORK STATE HISTORY - 1976 was distributed free-of-charge to public, college, and university libraries, to historical agencies and research centers in New York State, and to selected institutions worldwide. The positive field response to the 1976 edition underlined the need for annual publication of a State history bibliography. Renewed interest also necessitated a supplemental printing to make the 1976 edition of RESEARCH AND PUBLICATIONS available to academic and officially appointed county and municipal historians.

For the 1977 edition, alterations were made and the scope was expanded. New subject categories were established in an effort to make the bibliography more topical. Among the new subject areas covered were archeology, architecture, family history and genealogy, military history, and the history of recreation. A new section listed works published during the previous year but not included in RESEARCH AND PUBLICATIONS - 1976. The expansion of the 1977 edition to 173 pages reflected an effort to provide more comprehensive information than in the 1976 edition.

The 1978 edition of RESEARCH AND PUBLICATIONS IN NEW YORK STATE HISTORY marked the further development of a comprehensive State history bibliography. Authors, editors, compilers, and publishers were contacted individually in an effort to identify every ongoing or completed project. New resources were searched comprehensively to make RESEARCH AND PUBLICATIONS more inclusive. These included DISSERTATION ABSTRACTS and the WEEKLY RECORD of recent publications. The number of categories was increased from 17 to 28 making each category more cohesive. The development of a new, illustrated cover design reflected the New Social History focus that has been adopted by many historians. In an effort to better serve users of the bibliography, a new appendix was established listing members of the publishing community who consistently issued New York State history-related works.

The 1979 edition of RESEARCH AND PUBLICATIONS IN NEW YORK STATE HISTORY included a number of improvements implemented to make the bibliography a more easily used research tool. Annotations to entries were made more comprehensive. Full titles of journals were used - thus eliminating the system of abbreviations. The number of categories again was expanded to improve the topical approach of the bibliography. The family history section was divided to create a new category on census data and public records. The section on art was divided to reflect the graphic and performing aspects of art. RESEARCH AND PUBLICATIONS - 1979 was distributed to public, college, and university libraries, to historical agencies and research centers, and to academic and officially appointed local historians.

THE 1980 EDITION

The 1980 edition of RESEARCH AND PUBLICATIONS IN NEW YORK STATE HISTORY follows closely the topical pattern of the previous edition. An effort has been made to provide the most comprehensive annotations possible. The compilers have devoted much energy toward making RESEARCH AND PUBLICATIONS a more attractive and more easily used bibliographic tool. The annotations are more detailed with a greater amount of information being supplied on each work. Illustrations also appear throughout RESEARCH AND PUBLICATIONS.

A major problem has been providing complete information in a timely manner. We have tried to maintain the fine balance between publishing either too soon or too late for the bibliography to be of the greatest value. The necessity of publishing the bibliography as soon as practical causes a number of valuable finding aids to be unusable.

The goal of the 1980 edition has been to list and describe all New York State history-related works either published, otherwise completed, or in progress during calendar 1980. Any work presenting a new interpretive viewpoint on making available any new knowledge on any aspect of New York studies is included. Generally speaking, reprinted or revised editions of works that have been out of print for more than five years are listed while newspaper and newsletter articles are not.

EDITORIAL APPARATUS

The 1980 edition of RESEARCH AND PUBLICATIONS IN NEW YORK STATE HISTORY is organized into thirty alphabetically arranged, topical categories. Each category is divided into sections under the subheadings of "Published in 1980," "Additions to RESEARCH AND PUBLICATIONS - 1979," and "In Progress During 1979." These subheadings appear in that order within each subject category. Within each subheading, entries are listed alphabetically according to author and then by subject or responsible organization if no author is identifiable. Compilers, editors, and translators are recognized and indexed but their names have been subordinated to the subject in the alphabetical listing. Names and addresses of publishers have been supplied but have not been indexed.

The entry is the basic bibliographic unit of this work. Generally, one entry describes a single project or publication. An attempt has been made to provide complete information for each entry. Each topical category is composed of consecutively numbered entries. Each of these entries has been assigned a unique entry number. Appearing next is the author's surname, first name, and middle initial, or the subject of the work provided in brackets. After the author or subject has been identified, the title is listed exactly as it appears on the title page, or as submitted when verification was not possible, or for works in progress a tentative title, or article title and periodical, or parent volume title. Following the above information in order are the name of the compiler, editor, or translator; estimated completion date (ECD) and author's address for work in progress; place of publication (New York State is understood); publisher's name and address; reprint or special edition information; number of pages, graphic features, documentation, appendix, and index information.

The annotation summarizes the contents and provides other essential information not provided in the facts of publication. Works listed as in progress are described as either books (over 100 pages), booklets (under 100 pages), leaflets (ten pages or less), exhibition catalogs, graduate theses (doctoral and Master's), other typescripts available for examination, and journal and magazine articles. Scholarly papers delivered during 1980 at national, State, or regional conferences are listed as work in progress and are identified appropriately as research projects, conferences, symposia, or articles.

Each work listed has been assigned a unique entry number consisting of the letter designation for each category and a number for each item. The symbols for each category are listed in the "Table of Contents." Capitalized letters refer to worked published in 1980, lowercased letters to works in progress during 1980, and the prefix "79" refers to works published in 1979 but not included in the 1979 edition of RESEARCH AND PUBLICATIONS IN NEW YORK STATE HISTORY. For example, the entry number "AD-6" identifies the sixth item in the "Published in 1980" section of the category on the Adirondacks; the number "gp-17" refers to the seventeenth item listed as in progress in "Government and Politics;" and "79IN-15" refers to the fifteenth item in the "Additions to RESEARCH AND PUBLICATIONS - 1979" section of the category on the history of the Indians.

The index is the principal finding aid for this work. Every person, place, and thing in each entry (with the exception of dates, publishers' names and addresses, and places of publication) is indexed. The index should be consulted for the most efficient use of this bibliography. Index references are to the entry numbers described above and not to page numbers.

Abbreviations have been utilized and periods eliminated whenever appropriate. Nonstandard abbreviations are listed on page xiii. Publishers that frequently issue New York State history-related works are listed commencing on page 217. This list should serve as a guide to those seeking a publishing outlet for their own work. Periodicals suggested for research on the history of New York State are listed beginning on page 221. And finally, an appendix of frequently cited periodicals including publication and subscription information begins on page 225.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The production of this bibliography has become a complex and truly cooperative effort. Publication would not be possible without the assistance of many exceptional people. The thoughtfulness and cooperation of William P. McDermott of the Dutchess County Historical Society, Edward M. O'Connor of the Mid-York Library System, and Professor Ivan Steen of SUNY Albany is greatly appreciated.

A large number of students enrolled in the SUNY Albany "Special Topics in History" course have contributed to this project. Sarah Poirer gathered information on publishers of New York State history-related works. Thomas Popp helped compile the information found in the appendix of periodicals. Michael Arcure searched DISSERTATION ABSTRACTS, while James Esposito abstracted the WEEKLY RECORD. Barbara Sartori took responsibility for the "Upstate Community History" section. Meryl

Greenberg contributed editorial assistance. Daniel Cohen, Robert Larson, Bruce Stott, Peter Lehmuller, Linda Hughes, Michael Molloy, Stephen Peer, Debra Reiser, Sheldon Milo, and Steven Kaufman abstracted articles relating to New York State history. My colleagues in the State Education Department have contributed continued advice and support — Stefan Bielinski and Sheila Tucker provided editorial assistance and suggestions for the further development of the bibliography; Joseph F. Meany, Jr. provided much of the information in the military history section; Joelean Dearstyne offered valuable suggestions for the improvement of the bibliography; Melinda Yates supplied information on recent acquisitions by the New York State Library; Keith Prior is responsible for the original illustrations appearing throughout the bibliography; and Paul J. Scudiere has provided advice and support, thereby contributing to the improvement of the bibliography and making publication possible.

Special acknowledgements are due to those members of the historical community who have provided RESEARCH AND PUBLICATIONS IN NEW YORK STATE HISTORY with constant support. Their continued interest, contributions, and support in the project is essential to the future of RESEARCH AND PUBLICATIONS IN NEW YORK STATE HISTORY.

RESEARCH AND PUBLICATIONS

The entry is the basic bibliographic unit in this work. Entry numbers are composed of the letter abbreviation for the appropriate topical category and an identification number. Each entry has been assigned a unique letter-number symbol for the purpose of indexing.

Entries in each topical category are listed in the following order: "Published in 1980," - works published, reprinted, or otherwise completed during calendar 1980 (AD-5, UC-59); "Additions to RESEARCH AND PUBLICATIONS - 1979," - works published, reprinted, or otherwise completed during calendar 1979, but not listed in RESEARCH AND PUBLICATIONS - 1979 (79FH-18, 79GP-3); and "In Progress During 1980" indicating works in progress but not completed during calendar 1980 (bs-7, le-2).

The names of publishers and authors and their institutional affiliations are given, but publication prices are not. The publisher should be contacted for sales and other information. The Division of Historical and Anthropological Services holds no additional data on the works described in this bibliography.

ADIRONDACKS (AD)

The Adirondack Mountains constitute a unique physical and cultural entity. All activities with historical perspective occurring within the boundaries of the present Adirondack Park (all of Essex, Hamilton, and Warren Counties and parts of Clinton, Franklin, Fulton, Herkimer, Lewis, St Lawrence, Saratoga, and Washington Counties) are listed in this section regardless of topic. The bimonthly magazine, ADIRONDACK LIFE is a major source for the history of the Adirondack region.

NEW YORK STATE LIBRARY ACQUISITIONS

The New York State Library serves as a primary repository for all publications pertaining to the history and development of New York State. In order to better serve the New York State historical community, the New York State Library would appreciate notification from authors, editors, compilers, and publishers of all relevant publications available either by purchase or as a gift. Correspondence should be directed to: Humanities Reference Services, New York State Library, Empire State Plaza, Albany 12230.

INDEX

RESEARCH AND PUBLICATIONS IN NEW YORK STATE HISTORY is organized for fundamental reliance on the index. Every person, place, object, and event has been indexed, except for dates, publishers' names and addresses, and places of publications. Index references are to entry numbers and not to pages. Within each entry number, the letters identify the topic section (see Table of Contents, page iii). The numbers refer to the alphabetically arranged and consecutively numbered entries within each category. Capitalized letter symbols denote a published work, while lower-cased letters refer to research in progress. A capitalized topic symbol preceeded by the designation "79" signifies that the accompanying work was published, reprinted, or completed during 1979, but was not listed in the 1979 edition of this bibliography.
